

Most US imports from China are consumer electronics targeted by current tariffs

As of 2017, Chinese imports were most modern consumer staples, including electronics and household appliances. The Trump administration has imposed 25 percent tariffs on most of these goods.

Data Source: UN Comtrade International Trade Statistics & Personally Compiled Tariffs Listings